On March 13, 2023, at 10:00 am, we left Trinity College of Architecture and headed towards Mumbai Bandra station to catch train number 22933 to Jaipur. For our 6:00 p.m. train, we arrived at Bandra station at 5:00 p.m. Laughter, singing, and eating sessions permeated the entirety of our trip.

On April 14, 2023, we arrived at Jaipur Junction around 9:45 am. We then proceeded to our accommodation, the Lords Plaza, in Jaipur. The students were given their assigned accommodations, given some time to freshen up, and invited to join for lunch at 1:00 pm. The first place we visited was Jawahar Kala Kendra in Jaipur after lunch.

In 1986, Charles Correa, a well-known Indian builder, built the Jawahar Kala Kendra Arts Center in Jaipur. The centre was established by the Rajasthani government with the goal of preserving and promoting Rajasthani arts and crafts. The initial city plan of Jaipur, which included nine squares and left the central square empty, served as Correa's model. Similar to this, the arts centre's architecture features nine interconnected squares, with the central square serving as an open courtyard, providing a sense of unity and coherence to the structure.

Following that, we went to the Sanjay Puri-designed 72 Screens structure. The structure was created in reaction to the traditional elements' excessive heat absorption.

We have scheduled a journey to the Lakshmi Narayan Temple, formerly known as the Birla Temple in Jaipur, which is located below the Moti Dungri Fort, for later in the evening. In contrast to the conventional old Hindu temples, the Birla Temple was constructed using a contemporary design and is made of pure white marble. The Dinner at the hotel brings Day 2 to a close.

The primordial has become a fecund source of the mythic. This is why Picasso and Matisse in their paintings, Stravinsky in his music, and Le Corbusier in his architecture intuitively searched out the primitive. – Charles Correa

Our third day began with breakfast at the Hotel. Next, we headed towards Amer Fort, stopping along the way at Jal Mahal. A little after 10:00 am, we arrived at Amer Fort. The Amer Palace Fort is situated 11 kilometres away from the main metropolis on top of a small hill. The majestic Amer Fort is a vast palace complex made of white marble, pink and yellowish-white sandstone, and other natural materials. The fort is split into four major sections, each of which has a beautiful courtyard. Later that afternoon, we went to Jantar Mantar, an early 18th-century astronomical observation location. There are about 20 major fixed instruments in it. They are eloquent stone representations of well-known instruments, many of which also have unique qualities of their own. They feature a number of architectural and technological innovations and were created for the naked-eye observation of astronomical locations. After that, we went to Jaipur's City Palace, which is The City Palace Complex, which is tucked away inside the fortified city, was designed and constructed by Maharaja Sawai Jai Singh II, who founded Jaipur. The last reigning royal family still resides in the palace, which is a stunning fusion of Mughal and Rajput architecture, in a private area. The majority of the structures are attributed to Maharaja Sawai Jai Singh II, but later kings also added to them. After visiting the city palace, the students had free time until 7:00 p.m. to explore Jaipur city, tour the Hawa mahal, and go shopping. The students studied regional customs and culture, and our third day concluded with supper at the hotel.

Day 4 of our trip begins with breakfast and the loading of our luggage into the bus as we head towards the Chittorgarh fort.

After lunch, we travelled to the Chittorgarh Fort in four separate auto rickshaws. One of the biggest forts in India is the Chittorgarh Fort, also called Chittorgarh or Chittor Fort. A UNESCO World Heritage Site, it is. The fort, which once served as Mewar's headquarters, is situated in Chittorgarh today. It covers a hill 180 metres high (590.6 feet) and 280 hectares (691.9 acres) in size, rising above the plains of the basin that the Berach River drains.

The 65 historic buildings that make up the fort include four palaces, 19 sizable temples, 20 sizable water features, four memorials, and a few triumph towers. Students and faculty toured the fort, palaces, and victory tower while we were there until 6 o'clock.

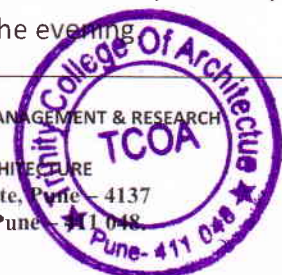

Additionally, the group purchased saris made of custard apples, tulsi, etc. In a pleasant environment, we visited the fort before setting out again for Udaipur. Our fourth day in Udaipur came to an end after supper when we arrived there at around 8 o'clock in the evening.

On day 5 after breakfast our whole day was designed as city tour in which first we have visited moti magri. Moti Magri is situated on the eastern coastal part of Udaipur's Fateh Sagar Lake. The monument pays homage to the Haldighati battle against Emperor Akbar that took place in 1575. The statue of Maharana Pratap is 11 feet high, with a weight of 7 tonnes. FIGURE 7: CITY PALACE UDAIPUR of Udaipur, the metropolis. This garden offers a verdant retreat in the desert regions of Rajasthan and is situated on the shores of the Fateh Sagar Lake. Maharana Sangram Singh constructed it between 1710 and 1734 for the royal women. It is located in the city's northern region and features marble elephants, a lotus pool, fountains, and shops.

We left the hotel after lunch and headed to the city capital of Udaipur, which was our next stop. One of Rajasthan's building wonders, Udaipur City Palace is situated serenely on the shores of Lake Pichola. Numerous entrances at City Palace are referred to as "Pols."

The primary entrance to the City Palace complex, known as "Bara Pol" (Great Gate), leads to the first courtyard. The City Palace is made up of 11 magnificent buildings that were constructed by various kings.

Students were allowed free time to explore the city of Udaipur, its vibrant culture, and its cuisine after visiting the city palace. The pupils went shopping and strolled through Udaipur's streets and alleys. Our fifth day came to a close with memories of Udaipur after supper at the hotel.

Our Day 6 began with brunch at the hotel, check-out, and the beginning of our trip to the Kumbhalgarh fort. The second-most significant fortress in the Mewar region after Chittorgarh is Kumbhalgarh, which is situated 84 kilometres north of Udaipur in a wilderness area. Rana Kumbha constructed the fort, which is tucked away in the Aravali Mountains, in the 15th century. The fort appears to be unbeatable due to the topography's hostile inaccessibility. It acted as a haven for the Mewar kings during turbulent times. The Badal Mahal, also known as the palace of the clouds, is the most picturesque location among the magnificent collection of temples that the Mauryas constructed. A fantastic bird's eye perspective of the surroundings is also provided by the fort. The fort's extensive wall extends for about 36 km and is wide enough for eight horses to pass one another.

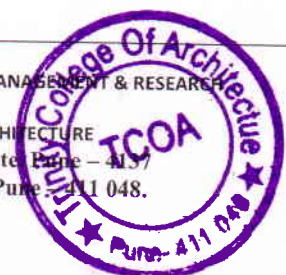

After visiting kumbhal garh fort we began our journey towards our next destination Jodhpur also called as blue city. Jodhpur city is 173 km away from kumbhalgarh which took around 4 hours to reach. We reached our jodhpur hotel at around 7 pm after allotment of rooms , dinner was served at around 8:30 which leads to conclusion of our day 6.

On Day 7, we clear out of our hotel in Jodhpur after breakfast. After that, we went to the Umaid Bhawan Palace, which was created by renowned Edwardian builder H V Lanchester. On Chittar hill, the Maharaja once more placed the foundation stone after the palace became disorganised on November 18, 1929.

The royal mansion, which can cover up to 26 acres of land, is 110 feet tall and features opulent rooms that capture the essence of a wealthy bygone period. It is one of Jodhpur's most expensive motels. The regal castle is made up of tasteful royal heirlooms, high ceilings, marble hallways, loot chests, hunting trophies, and lush velvet lawns and courtyards.

In the palace compound, we also went to the vintage automobile museum. The castle is a magnificent example of Indo-European design.

After lunch at the hotel, we travelled to Jaswant Thada, also known as the Taj Mahal of Mewar. The proximity of this white monument to a small lake makes it the ideal retreat from Jodhpur's busy chaos. Jalis, artwork, and images of the rulers of Rathore adorn this serene monument. When exposed to sunshine, the thinly polished marble sheets used for construction emit a glowing illumination.

Following our visit to Jaswant Thada, we continued on to Mehran Garh Fort. There we met Architect Niharika, a conservation architect for the Mehrangarh fort foundation. She takes us on a tour of the fort and educates us about the preservation efforts made there as well as the fort's functionality in terms of its rooms, facades, materials, circulation, water supply, connection to the city, etc. With her, we learned a lot for three hours. The fort is situated on a 125 m high hill in the vicinity of Jodhpur city and spans a 5 km² region. The Mehrangarh fort has seven gates through which one can approach. These seven entrances were constructed in celebration of victories by various kings. Students were allowed free reign to explore Jodhpur city after our visit to the Mehrangarh fort. Rainstorms with a high intensity had greeted us on our final day in Rajasthan. We liked exploring and enjoying Jodhpur's cultural lanes in the pouring rain before having dinner in our hotel. We moved in the direction of Jodhpur after dinner in order to catch our train to Pune. Our train, number 16588, departed Jodhpur Junction for Pune at 10:45 p.m. The following day was spent travelling by train, and at around 7:00 pm, we arrived at Pune Junction and came to an end to our study tour of Rajasthan.
